“Workers' Republic”

In December 2008, laid-off Chicago factory workers occupied their vanishing workplace, Republic Windows & Doors, declaring they would not leave until the owners and creditors agreed to pay them the severance they were owed. 'Workers' Republic' captures the courage of ordinary people who take on considerable risks in a stand for their rights.

FRIDAY NOVEMBER 19, 2010, 7-9:30 PM

Film: "WORKERS REPUBLIC" (60 min, Andrew Friend, 2010)

WORKERS' REPUBLIC chronicles one of the most important labor victories in recent memory.

Three weeks before Christmas 2008, in the depths of the economic crisis, Chicago company Republic Windows and Doors announced the factory's closure, with no pay for the workers', no severance and no insurance. The response of these ordinary people harkened back to the sit-down strikes of the 1930s and reminded the working class it possesses a power long forgotten. This is the story of how they occupied the factory, declaring they would not leave until they were given what their employer owed them, making headlines all over the world. A testimony to courage, the creativity, and the solidarity to stand up for one's rights.

Film: "THE HARRIMAN ALASKA EXPEDITION RETRACED" (110 min, Lawrence Hott, 2002)

Two scientific expeditions to Alaska, 100 years apart, give us an unparalleled view of environmental damage and the change in society's attitudes.

A century ago, railroad tycoon Edward H. Harriman decided to form one of the most ambitious scientific expeditions the world had ever seen. He invited the top authorities in the country: geologists, botanists, foresters, ornithologists, paleontologists, zoologists, painters, photographers, writers to join him on a 9000-mile exploration of the coast of Alaska. Over a century later, Thomas Litwin of Smith College organized an expedition to follow the path of the original one. Again, it was stocked with a constellation of scientific brilliance. THE HARRIMAN ALASKA EXPEDITION RETRACED presents a unique look at 100 years of change in Alaska, and in American attitudes towards the environment and indigenous peoples.

FRIDAY DECEMBER 3, 2010, 7-9:30 PM

Film: "THE MEAN WORLD SYNDROME - Media Violence & the Cultivation of Fear"

(51 min, Jeremy Earp, 2010) A new film based on the late George Gerbner's groundbreaking analysis of media influence and media violence. For years, debates have raged among scholars, politicians, and concerned parents about the effects of media violence on viewers. Too often these debates have descended into simplistic battles between those who claim that media messages directly cause violence and those who argue that activists exaggerate the impact of media exposure altogether. THE MEAN WORLD SYNDROME examines how media violence forms a heightened state of insecurity, exaggerated perceptions of risk and danger, and a fear-driven propensity for hard-line political solutions to social problems. Please join us for a facilitated discussion following the film.
